HARDY FLOWERING SHRUBS

Lend Distinction and Value to Your Grounds

Honey-suckle Zabeli.

Honey-suckles are unusually decorative and ornamental. They are easy to cultivate, quite hardy and produce small flowers of delicate color and fragrance in great profusion. The flowers are followed by attractive small fruits of red scarlet and crimson. They never become coarse or weedy; are valuable when used in a low screen or hedge and several of them planted close to the house will make their presence known by the refreshingly sweet of their showy blossoms. Zabeli Honey-suckle is one of the best, its flowers are of the deepest red you ever saw. Every branch filled with flowers, followed by brilliant red berries.

Dwarf Ninebark.

This native plant fills most of the requirements of a good shrub, such as dense growth, pleasing foliage of good texture and shape (pale green and deeply cut into three or five lobes) and bears its leaves well to the ground. In addition to that it covers itself with clusters of small pink flowers in late spring or early summer. It rarely exceeds four feet in height. And best of all is its ability to get along under the most adverse conditions. Dwarf Ninebark grows naturally on the plains and foothills from South Dakota and Wyoming southward. It grows well in the shade. Plant a few.

Purple Leaf Plum
Cistena.

The Purple Leaf Plum Cistena with its purple leaves furnishes a delightful contrast in the green shrub border. The leaf color is a reddish purple or wine color and the branches are of a reddish brown. This adds much color and a gay note to the other plantings and brightens up the lawn in summer. In winter the reddish colored bark enriches the landscape. Cistena will grow about 4-5 ft tall at maturity. Its graceful, striking beauty will be admired by all. Be sure and add this distinct shrub to your planting, you will be surprised how it will enrich your landscape picture. Pink flowers.

Rose of Sharon.

The Rose of Sharon also called Shrub Althea is one of the best of the flowering shrubs. Flowers appear late in August, lasting until frost. The large blossoms range in color from white through pink and purple. They are borne in great profusion. Standing alone or in groups the Rose of Sharon make handsome specimens. As a hedge plant they rank with the best, blooming at a time when color is lacking in the garden. Here is a shrub which deserves to be planted around every home. They surely enrich the landscape picture. In this bargain we offer the new colors; Red White and Blue. One must see these beautiful shrubs to fully appreciate them. Please state the color you want.

BUDDLEIAS ^{or} Summer Lilacs

BUTTERFLY BUSH

The Buddleia, or as they are more commonly known the Butterfly Bush, are a beautiful group of flowering shrubs. The leaves are generally grayish, due to a fine hairiness. The flowers are large spikes or panicles, usually in some shade of purple or lavender. Flowers appear from July to late fall. Of late some beautiful new hybrids have been developed, of which we offer five of the best.

Charming- This Buddleia gives a glorious effect in the garden or shrubbery border and produces an abundance of lovely sprays of lavender-pink blooms.

Dubonnet- Producing flowers of a glorious color of a true red in sunshine and under artificial light, firm cylindrical spikes closely set with blooms.

Eleanor- A new creation. Shading from Eleanor blue to lavender. Easily the finest of the lavender kind. Tremendously long spikes, well filled with blossoms.

Ile De France- Long, one foot flower spikes of glowing claret purple. Irresistibly calls butterflies to enjoy its nectar. Pleasing fragrance.

New Red Buddleia- A real red Butterfly bush. Sweetly fragrant, admirable for cutting. Produces an abundance of long spikes. A real gem.

Magnolia Bargain

MAGNOLIA. Soulangeana

Here is good news: We have obtained another supply of Magnolias. We made a Special Offer early this year and in a short time we were sold out. But we were fortunate enough to obtain some more which we offer to our friends and customers. But we urge you to order early so that you may not be disappointed.

Magnolia - Soulangeana or as it is commonly known, the Saucer Magnolia is such a beautiful tree that it is no wonder everybody admires it. Hardy and vigorous, it begins to bloom when still young. The bell shaped flowers, which appear before the leaves, are 4-6 inches across, purplish pink on the outside but white within.

The Saucer Magnolia belongs to the Asiatic Magnolia family. China being its natural habitat. It was named after an French Army officer, Chevalier Soulange Bodin, who in the early eighteenth century introduced it into France.

You probably have wished for a long time to have one of these magnificent Magnolias in your garden, but the high price made you hesitate. We have made a low price so that every home owner can adorn his grounds with these fine Magnolias.

We offer grafted trees which have been in the field for 2 years and should start to bloom soon.

Each : $ 1.35 -- 2 for only $ 2.50
